Field of Corpses: The Scare Coloradoans have been Dying to Experience

—Historic Property of Arvada to Host the State's Largest Haunted Attraction—

ARVADA, Colo. September 19, 2003 – Inspired by his passion for Halloween, renowned pastry chef and artist, Zachary Meyer, has transformed the pasture surrounding Das Meyer Fine Pastry Chalet and Morningside Manor into Colorado's largest haunted attraction. Field of Corpses, opening October 2, 2003, incorporates a chilling combination of classic scares, original 18th century architecture and unparalleled terror.

"Halloween is my life. As a kid I used to turn my parent's house, and as the years went on our adjoining neighbor's homes, into the neighborhood scare factory. It seemed only a natural extension to build my own haunted house. Colorado needs a new and different haunting experience, one that stays with you for days after you leave. Field of Corpses will leave you with the exhilarating sense of fear that is Halloween," said Zachary Meyer, owner and operator of Demented Dwarfs Production, LLC.

About Demented Dwarfs, LLC.

Founded in Arvada, Colo. in 2001, Demented Dwarfs Productions, LLC. is the parent company of Field of Corpses, Colorado's largest haunted attraction. Demented Dwarfs emerged from the obsession with fear and unparalleled artist creativity of Zachary Meyer, master dessert chef of Das Meyer Fine Pastry Chalet.

The plan for Field of Corpses began over a breakfast conversation with Meyer's family, by lunch the design was complete and by dinner it was settled they would build a haunted attraction. Meyer constructed Field of Corpses on the historic Torrence White Property, one of Arvada's first and last remaining farms, home to his family's bakery and reception manor. Field of Corpses incorporates a haunting agricultural theme with the turn-of-the-century architecture while maintaining the historic integrity of the site.
